More about Cam: Cam's personal experience as an international adoptee from Korea informs and inspires his current professional work. He formed his own private practice, Therapy Redeemed, in 2018, to raise awareness and respond to the mental health needs of adoptees and their families wherever they may be in their own adoption journey. Cam's vision for adoptee-centered advocacy is evident through his 1:1 counseling services, live workshops and support groups, Masterclass trainings, and his active content creation/collaboration in and through various media platforms. Cam brings value and much needed perspective to the adoption community, particularly for adoptees and their families. Learn more and begin working with Cam at therapyredeemed.com/wordpress.

About this workshop (from Cam Lee Small):

Being an adoptee during the teen years can be a confusing time. It can be even more confusing for those trying to parent us! This training will help clarify and respond to some of the common challenges parents face during their adoptee's adolescent years. Participants will explore the different kinds of professional supports that have been effective in helping teen adoptees walk through a range of experience as they navigate the journey of adolescence and adoption.

Although this workshop focuses primarily on supporting teens who have experienced adoption, many topics discussed will help support teens experiencing foster care as well.
